

Part 1. Pre-Listening Vocabulary

Species	The white rhino is an endangered specifies , so if you go to Africa you probably won't see this beautiful animal.
Splash	Kids like to splash in the water during the summer at Haeundae beach.
Violently	The speeding car crashed violently into the wall and then stopped near the intersection.
Limp	After working all day, he sat his limp body in the chair and watched TV for three hours.
Gills	Before eating the fish, you have to cut off the tail, head and gills.
Not worth the trouble	I thought about getting an MS Office certificate but decided the extra work was not worth the trouble .

- Try to guess the meaning of the key words.
- Check your dictionary. Were you right?
- Write a sentence with the key word or phrase.

Part 2. Comprehension Questions

How many people are attacked each year?

How many species attack people?

Which shark is not a man-eater?

Why is splashing not recommended?

From the video, we learn sharks are:

The video teaches us how to:

The video suggests sharks:

From the video, we might guess that sharks:

about a 100	more than 1000	less than 100
300	a few	3
Bull	Jaws bar	Tiger
uses too much energy	it's useless	it brings other sharks
afraid	curious	hungry
attack a shark	survive an attack	spot a shark
attack frequently	can be defeated	travel in groups
want easy food	how to survive an attack	how to swim

Part 3. Fill in the blanks

Few animals inspire more _____ than sharks. But out of the millions of people worldwide who swim in the ocean each year, less than _____ are attacked. Of the more than 300 _____ of shark, only a small number are proven man eaters. The most dangerous are tiger sharks, bull sharks and great whites. A bite from them can literally cost _____ and limb.

Sharks may bite people out of _____, but often as not will bite out of simple curiosity. They'll gladly sample anything _____ bobbing in the water like a person just to see what it tastes like.

So knowing how to _____ can mean the difference between life and death. If a shark attacks, should you: splash _____, go for the eyes, or play dead? The correct answer is B, go for the eyes.

Splashing violently only _____ more sharks toward you. Playing dead leads to being dead. A _____ body tells the shark it's time to tuck in for a big meal. Your best chance is to strike at its _____ spots. Its eyes, gills and nose. Make the shark decide you're not worth the trouble. And while its deciding get to _____ as fast as you can. And that's how you _____ a shark attack.

Shark Attack National Geographic

Few animals inspire more fear than sharks. But out of the millions of people worldwide who swim in the ocean each year, less than a hundred are attacked. Of the more than 300 species of shark, only a small number are proven man eaters. The most dangerous are tiger sharks, bull sharks and great whites. A bite from them can literally cost life and limb.

Sharks may bite people out of hunger, but often as not will bite out of simple curiosity. They'll gladly sample anything unusual bobbing in the water like a person just to see what it tastes like.

So knowing how to respond can mean the difference between life and death. If a shark attacks, should you: splash violently, go for the eyes, or play dead? The correct answer is B, go for the eyes.

Splashing violently only attracts more sharks toward you. Playing dead leads to being dead. A limp body tells the shark it's time to tuck in for a big meal. Your best chance is to strike at its soft spots. Its eyes, gills and nose. Make the shark decide you're not worth the trouble.

And while its deciding get to shore as fast as you can. And that's how you survive a shark attack.